BWRT® Level One Training Information

This document outlines what you will learn during your training and what is needed to gain your full professional qualification afterwards.

A thorough introduction to the theoretical construct that underpins BWRT® – this is essential knowledge to achieve the level of success that is possible with this neuroscience-based therapy.

You will observe a video demonstrations showing the speed with which BWRT® can work, followed by in-depth instruction on the two main protocols and supervised practice in each. You will also be introduced to the function and process of four other protocols to be used for specialist issues. At the end of the second day, you will be equipped to begin using BWRT® immediately and will be provided the course manual to take away with you.

During the 2 day training you will learn all that you need, including: when to use BWRT®; suitable conditions to work with; using the intake form; client management; working with agendas; safeguards and contraindicators; what to do if it doesn't work; what to put on your website; and more...

Certification: If all you want to do is learn how to use the process, you need do nothing else. If you want to advertise yourself as a BWRT Practitioner though, you will need to take a small written exam followed by an online professional assessment, where you will be required to demonstrate the two main protocols and your theoretical knowledge. This will gain you your BWRT Certificate, but it must be completed within two months of the completion of training. The process of certification is included in the cost of the training.

If you choose to become certified you will be eligible to become a member of The British BrainWorking Research Society, after which you will be a 'Registered BWRT Practitioner'.
